COOKING IN GLASS

When you are cooking or baking in oven glass, you know just where you're at. One glance in the oven glass and you see the scalloped potatoes have arrived at the perfect stage of delicate, taste-provoking tan. You can see the vegetables and meat juices bubbling merrily through the transparent top of a casserole dish; you can survey a baked cake from stem to stern without fear that it will fall under the experimental prod of your forefinger. You need never make the mistake of removing the dumplings from the heat before they are done.

Ovenware glass absorbs a higher per cent of radiant heat than other materials used in utensils, a fact which makes cooking or baking in glass more economical of cooking heat. Dishes to be baked in ovenware may be placed in a cooler oven and left there a shorter length of time.

Another beauty of glassware for oven use is that the glass casserole dish may be removed from the oven after hours and look as dainty and sparkling in use at the table as though by some magic the food had been transferred to it after baking, without disturbing the rich, golden-brown, baked-in crust.

Casserole cookery, now so popular, is a method borrowed from the French. The original French "casserole" was a coarse clay saucer used for baking combinations of meat and vegetables and used in serving the food at table. We borrowed this one-dish-for-baking-and-serving idea from the French but developed it into the gay and varied dish it is today. Casseroles are made not only in the transparent glassware that is so handy and economical, but in vitrified china, earthenware, aluminum and iron. There are handsome six-quart electric casseroles, as well.

If a meal is going to be delayed, plan to serve a casserole one-dish dish, for this may be kept warm with no loss of attractiveness, juiciness or flavor. Casserole cookery needs little washing, either. And think how it cuts down dish washing time! You can be preparing a casserole dish and using the same oven for other baking; another economy of this type of cooking. If a very hot oven is required for the other baking, the casserole may be set in a pan of water so that the food will simmer without boiling. As the water becomes hot, it is well to remove part of it and add cold water in its place, to maintain the desired temperature around the casserole.

Casserole cookery enables us to use left-overs in ever so many palatable ways. Its long slow simmering makes tough cuts of meat tender. A variety of vegetable dish may be prepared in the casserole—steamed, stuffed, scalloped, au gratin and baked. For an gratin dish, simply prepare the mixture of chicken, fish or macaroni, place in the casserole, top with buttered crumbs, add grated cheese, if desired, and place in a hot oven to brown.

ESCALLOPED CORN
1 can corn
8 graham crackers
1 cup milk
½ cup butter
Salt
Pepper
Butter glass baking dish. Pour one-half can of corn into dish. Break crackers into crumbs and sprinkle half of crumbs over corn and pour half of milk over this. Pour in rest of corn, add crumbs, dot with the butter, add salt and pepper to taste. Pour remaining milk over top. Bake in moderate oven for 45 minutes.

POTATO AND ONION CONCORDIA
2 cups potato balls
2 cups small onions
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup well-seasoned medium thick white sauce
½ cup grated cheese
Cut potatoes into small balls with a cutter. Peel small onions. Cook the onions until nearly tender, in salted boiling water. Add the potato balls and continue cooking until both vegetables are tender. Place the vegetables in a shallow glass baking dish which has been buttered. Pour white sauce over top, sprinkle on the grated cheese. Bake in a hot oven 500 degrees for 12 minutes.

WOODMEN SEEK NEW MEMBERS

CAMP AIGON WILL CONTINUE
THROUGHOUT ENTIRE MONTH IN FORTY-FOUR STATES.

Omaha, Neb., Mar. 1.—The second annual "President's Month" drive of the Woodmen of the World, financially the strongest fraternal life insurance association in the world, is now in full swing in the forty-four states where the organization functions. The concerted movement for new members is scheduled for the month of March only.

First reports of the drive received at the office here of De E. Bradshaw, president of the Woodmen of the World, indicated it would exceed the all-time record established in "President's Month" last year. Plans for the membership movement had been under way for months, with officials from the national headquarters in Omaha contacting state managers and other Woodmen representatives throughout the United States.

"For instance," President Bradshaw said, "last year was one of outstanding achievement for our organization when we wrote more than $84,000,000 in new business. This was an increase of more than $34,000,000 over 1933.

"There is everything to indicate that the new year will be even better from a business standpoint. Our organization is moving forward with confidence in the future."

The gross assets of the Woodmen of the World have grown to more than $119,000,000 with a net gain in membership of 12,322 members last year.

NEWS OF THE WEEK
OVER THE NATION

HAPPENINGS THAT AFFECT DINER PAIRS, DIVIDEND CHECKS AND TAX BILLS OF PEOPLE.

Washington has been the center of national interest during the past few weeks. A great deal that is momentous has happened there—and is happening.

First and foremost comes the supreme court's long-delayed decision on the gold clause cases—held by some to be the most important decision in a great many years, inasmuch as the administration's whole recovery and reform program hinged upon it. Readers of newspaper headlines obtained the impression that the court, by a five-to-four majority, upheld the government 100 per cent. But, as a financial commentator said shortly after the decision, the government was about 99 1/4 to 100 per cent—implied in the decision was a warning to congress to the effect that there were limits beyond which it could not go.

The majority decision, read by Chief Justice Hughes, held that the case against the gold clause was really a case against the government. Railroad, which was held by a "gold" bondholder who wanted his interest paid on the old gold dollar basis, must be dismissed, inasmuch as congress had the power to control, regulate and determine the gold value of currency.

Of greater interest was the decision in the Liberty bond cases, where a bondholder sued the government itself. The majority opinion held that congress had gone beyond its constitutional power in abrogating its gold contract—but the plaintiff was not entitled to recover damages, as he could not show that he had actually lost anything. The reason he had not lost, said Mr. Hughes, was that if he were actually paid in gold he would not be able to use it; he would have to turn it in to the government at once and would be paid at the old rate per ounce. He could not trade with it; it could not export it; could not get more for it than he could get for the same amount of existing currency.

The warning to congress went too far—and in the implication that, if a person can prove loss in the future through abrogation of a government gold contract, he may be entitled to recover damages.

Result of the decision was a temporary boom in the stock market which immediately subsided. Grade A bonds rose, held the advance.

Observations on the decision, whether favorable or unfavorable, seemed to be that the court had simply followed the law. Most editorial comment regretted that the decision had been by so narrow a margin—in effect, one man had the power to make or break the policy of an administration. It is an interesting fact that this man, Mr. Hughes, was once a Republican candidate for the presidency.

When supreme court votes are taken, the chief justice votes last, so that when Mr. Hughes' turn came the court was evenly divided and he had the power to throw the balance either way. Also interesting is the fact that the biting minority opinion was read by Mr. McReynolds, a Democrat who served under Wilson as attorney-general.

After the supreme court, the Washington gaze focuses on congress, which is exhibiting an unlooked-for independence. Before the session started, most observers forecast that the president would have a harder time getting what he wants than he did last session. But no one thought that opposition to his wishes would be as strong as it is. At this writing, the work-relief bill is not yet passed and it probably will not become law for some weeks, as congress has done something the president is strongly opposed to—made it obligatory to pay public works employees wages as high as those paid by private industry. The president wants the scale to be lower, so that workers will keep an eye on private jobs, will not be satisfied to work indefinitely for the government. Senator Glass fought on behalf of the administration to stop congress from putting in the undesired provision, but failed. Senator Glass then said that the president would veto the bill.

The president's much-anticipated NRA message has gone to congress. If its recommendations are followed, there will be less government control over industrial management, less bureaucratic regimentation of industry. Hours and wages provisions will be continued—but jail terms for NRA offenders will be dropped. Price-fixing will be modified or eliminated—the president said significantly that the anti-trust laws, which were completely abrogated when the NRA was first born, must be put into force again. This obviously stems from the growing consumers' revolt against soaring prices.

Recent business reports show a slight let-down from the upsurge that of providing revenue. The amount was not specified. There was no provision for raising revenue in the house bill.

A sub-committee of the ways and means group recommended the 5 per cent sales tax be included in the general act now in committee. Proponents of the measure calculated it would net the state from $18,000,000 to $30,000,000 annually.

There is no referendum on the beer measure, so that the sale of beer in Georgia will be legalized as soon as the measure is approved by the senate and governor. The liquor bill carries a state-wide popular vote referendum scheduled for May 15th.

The beer measure specifically modifies the "bone-dry" law so as to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and other malt beverages, and also removes the ban in the present prohibition law against advertising such beverages.

The house-approved liquor bill—now up to the senate—provides a state-wide referendum on a popular vote basis. If the senate passes the bill—and a poll of that body shows that the majority favor repeal in some form—the bill is approved at the polls on May 15, referenda in the different counties would follow, on petition of 10 per cent of the voters, to determine what counties shall be wet.

Municipalities or counties would be authorized to operate whisky stores, providing their governin ghodies elect to do so.

Common schools would benefit from a 10 per cent state tax on gross sales income, the permits for both private dealers and subdivisions of the state to be obtained from the state revenue commission. Incidentally (and this will interest newspapers and other publications in Georgia) a provision prohibiting the advertising of alcoholic beverages was stricken from the liquor bill. The beer bill also removes the ban in the present prohibition law against advertising such beverages, as previously stated.

NEW JUNIOR COLLEGE

The movement to establish at Savannah a new junior college is assuming definite shape, and the possibility is strong that South Georgia will be served at an early date by this promised institution.

There is ample need for added educational facilities in this section of the state. Until the establishment of the South Georgia Teachers College at Statesboro some twenty years ago, then known as an Agricultural College, Southeast Georgia was poor.

In higher educational facilities. In more recent years our own college, having changed its status and added strength, has grown to be of recognized importance. Serving that large section in Southeast Georgia which had been so long neglected, South Georgia Teachers College is meeting a valuable purpose. Yet there are many young people who find it necessary to go elsewhere for their educational needs. The new junior college in Savannah, which now appears to be a strong probability, will contribute to serve the need which exists for added educational facilities.

There are in the northern corners of this state, in neighboring counties and within short distance of each other, colleges which are thriving. The presence of one does not hamper the services of the other, but, apparently the greater number gives greater strength to each.

It is a pleasing indication of a helpful inclination when the educational leaders of the state are willing to contribute to the establishment and support of added educational institutions when and where needed. It ought not to be necessary for the young people of South Georgia to go far away from home to obtain that which is justly due them. Education at less expense is offered by the presence of added colleges, and the proposal to establish a new institution in Savannah promises to make a valuable contribution to the young people of Southeast Georgia.

SELF-PROTECTION A CRIME?
Commenting editorially on the political charge that the utilities have actively opposed government ownership of their properties, the Pomerooy, Ohio, Tribune says:

"It is indeed difficult for the average man who thinks with an open mind and who is not so prejudiced that he cannot give a subject fair and intelligent thought, to get excited over such charges. As a matter of fact just why should not a company or firm, whether engaged in public utilities or grocery selling, be permitted to do everything possible so long as he neither circumvents nor breaks laws, to keep from losing his business..."

"Is not a man entitled to the fruits of his labor? Is he to be shorn of his business without a chance to protect himself simply because it happens to be a utilities business? Such things are not right nor equitable, nor can any amount of argument make them so."

"If and when the laws now in effect are properly enforced and honest officials see that competent engineers properly fix valuations for utilities and set rates accordingly, there never will be any reason for governmental interference or ownership of utilities. And if such actions are taken, the people will receive lower rates than they will get under governmental operation with the grafting methods used, will most political deals extended to the field of public utilities."—Industrial News Review.

CONFISCATORY TAXES

The best way to measure the burden of taxation is to relate to the national income. The amount of tax the nation pays is principally important in the light of the money we have out of which to do the paying.

In 1923, the national income was over $99,000,000,000, and taxes took $27,000,000,000—10 per cent. During ensuing years, that percentage was relatively constant, and in our peak income year, 1929, cost of government absorbed but 11.8 per cent of our income.

In 1930, our income dropped to $70,000,000,000, from the high of $85,000,000,000 established the year before, while taxes rose and took 14.6 per cent of all the money we earned. In 1932, taxes took 20.7 per cent. Conclusive figures for years since are not available—but best opinion holds that government costs amount to more than 25 per cent of the national income.

What this means is that government has utterly failed in adjusting its finances to fit current economic conditions. Every business and every individual has had to do that during depression—they have pruned budgets, cut out luxuries, and made income and outgo balance. Government has continued to spend more and more—and the result is increasing unemployment, delayed recovery.

It is true that government must make certain extraordinary expenditures in bad times, in order to aid the unfortunate. But a small portion of total government costs is used for such purposes—and "relief" is no alibi for government extravagance and experiments. Necessary governmental functions must be maintained, but the frills must be eliminated.—Industrial News Review.

ACID MAKES A THIN POCKETBOOK

Farmers have had to cut down their acreage of certain crops. If they are to make a fair profit this year every acre planted must be brought through to maturity with big yields of high grading crops. Too much acid in the soil is one of the biggest obstacles to bumper crops on many farms.

Soils cannot be expected to produce big, profitable yields until they have been properly limed. Until then, the excess acid in the soil will make for a thin pocketbook.

Certainly farmers can't afford to use any fertilizer in which acid predominates. The use of acid-forming fertilizer (physiologically neutral) can be bought for the same price.

And of further importance is the fact that it also contains nitrogen, phosphorus and calcium and other important plant food elements. These, authorities claim, are necessary to grow best crops, and that many soils show a very low content of them.

TO OUR MILK CUSTOMERS.

On account of the great advance in feed for our dairy cows, unless our customers make satisfactory settlement before the 10th of each month we will be compelled to discontinue leaving them any milk.

Long-Used Laxative
To be bought and used as needed for many years, speaks well for the reliability of Theodor's Black-Draught, purely vegetable family laxative. Mr. C. E. Radford writes from Elkhart, W. After all these years, I haven't found anything better than Black-Draught."

Discovered! a better kind of fertilizer

FERTILIZERS have added millions of dollars to crop values every year by increasing yields and improving quality. Yet, because most fertilizers left acid residues in the soil, crops could not make maximum use of the plant food in the fertilizer.

Improved Red Steer Non-Acid Forming Fertilizer (physiologically neutral) does not leave harmful acid residues. Plants can use every ounce of the plant food in growing to an early big yielding maturity. Besides being made Non-Acid forming this year, Red Steer now contains new plus values—added calcium, magnesium and other important plant foods that improve yield and quality.

Improved Red Ste

.. Nobody's Business ..

(By GEE MCGEE, Anderson, S. C.)

School News From Flat Rock
Miss Jennie veeve smith, our affable school principal, held a fine program last Friday as her week-end entertainment of the p. t. a. club which was visiting at the school house on this occasion.

she picked out all of her smart students and had them recite for the p. t. a. women, and they seem to be made a big hit, as 3 of the children were encouraged, and they came back and said the same peaces over both times.

the following children were on the list of reciters and speech-makers, and their subjects come right after their respective names:

1. ludie low Clark: speech—"good-bye little birdie flying to the south."
2. scud Clark: speech—"six little rabbits went out to run."

3. tootie Clark: recitation—"three blind mules."

4. trinkle Clark: impersonation—"10 nights in a barroom."

5. ludie Clark: speech—"who stole the apple?"

the school board is indeed lucky to have in their midst and on their faculty such a person as miss Jennie veeve smith the principle to lead our wayward children down the straight and narrow path that leads away from perdition anathora.

her twin sister, miss sallie veeve smith, is also a fine teacher, but she do not hold a college diploma like miss Jennie veeve; she had to stay at home and help her ma raise the balance of the youngsters while miss Jennie veeve was away at school.

after everybody had spoke, the three Clark quintuplexes sung 5 nice songs for the auditors, and they clapped their hands together after ever song till they got red in the face, then miss Jennie veeve gave each person who appeared on the program a nice stick of candy to suck on their way home. It was then adjourned.

Mike Ecton on the Labor Situation
Our cotton mill is running on full time and everybody is happy except the politicians and mr. gorman. we don't hear nothing from the stretch-out system from the workers who are being stretched out, but our pin-head, goober-acted legislators anathora seem terribly wrought up onner count of it.

sid wilkins says he do not mind the stretch-out system and would not of paid no attention to same had it not of been for folks in office who wants him to vote for them telling him they are running him to death anathora, he says he works 8 hours and then he quits and then he stretches out at home for 16 hours. he runs a hole passel of looms, but he says they do not run him.

that is the trouble about politicians and labor bosses, everybody is satisfied except the few men in public office who wants to be re-elected, and they think the way to get re-elected is to cuss out capitol and brag on labor and sympathize with the down-trodden workers who are getting on better than the politicians are. there more labor than there is capitol, he always hollers for the crowd that can do the most voting.

art square says that he has noticed more of late that labor is doing its own thinking, and is not counting much on n. y. telling them how and what to do. he says that many many good weaver or loomfixer or bobbin roller or doffer or spinners are about as much sense as mr. gorman has, and generally uses more than he do.

but art square can't get labor to agree with him, he says he believes in labor unions, but thinks they ought to have a labor union for each town where the labor is employed, and then they wouldn't have to send all of the money away from home where they never see hair nor hide of it any more. he claims that he hears a lot more about labor troubles in the legislature and news-papers than he do amongst the workers themselves.

well, yore correspondent, mr. mike Clark, rfd, do not know what is best to do about stretching out or drawing in, but he thinks that the working people would like to be let alone so's they can make a living, and if they have any misunderstandings with capitol, they can settle their disputes betwixt their selves and not call on outside advisors anathora.

Week-End News From Flat Rock
A few government seed loan checks seem to be coming into our pines and the old roller-mobels have commenced to roll again, so far no town-sen pension money for the 65 and over have showed up, when they start they will mean plenty of gas, plenty oil and plenty free-wheelers for the young folks.

rd, who is also the best beef pedler in the world except a few big jackers in Chicago, has decided to sell his beef waggin and beef mule and buy himself a gasolene outfit to go to his selling in. It was made out of a hox-drawn hearse and rides very easy, will allow for a big yearling or sell for $4 in rail money, rite or loam 24-j.

no very good or very bad news has come from out state legislature up to now, so far, they have done nothing but talk and adjourn from day to day, as soon as some of them finds out what it is all about, they will probably pass some new tax law, elect each other to public office, draw their extra pay and come on home and brag about what they did for the deer people anathora. before leaving, they will turn the government back over to the highway department as usual.

yore traile, mike Clark, rfd, corry spendent.

Read this in 2 minutes it may save you money!

Use V-C Fertilizers EVERY year

BECAUSE

- 1 They supply in each bag every needed plant-food, plus needed minerals.
- 2 Each bag contains quantities of "cured" magnesia that prevents your soil from becoming sour and sickly.

YOU can buy no better mixtures than you get in V-C Fertilizers. Crop records prove it! Use V-C every year and you continue to get big yields that bring the top market price.

They are not just a few materials mixed together—but blends that contain the needed "extra" plant-foods as well as the usual ones. Use them—and you constantly replace the minerals crops draw out.

Because they are non-acid forming, they neutralize acids that constantly drip from plant-roots. Soils stay sweet year after year at no extra cost. Yields increase. Quality improves. You profit.

In each bag are all the necessary nutrients supplied by generous quantities of Tankage, Fish, Nitrate of Soda and other choice materials to —Feed and fatten the crop.

—Prevent soils from becoming sour and sickly.

Talk your fertilizer needs over NOW with the V-C Agent—a good man to know.
